Write an essay giving advantages and disadvantages of such a decision looking at this problem from different angles.

Even though it has been years since the European borders were opened for us, many Polish people still decide to move abroad nowadays. There are many advantages and disadvantages of it.

First and the most common issue that makes Polish people move to another country must be the lack of money. As we all know salaries in most European countries are a way higher than those that are paid here, in Poland. It is obvious that the living standards there are better. Second of all, emigration is a great way to gain new experience, not only at work, but also in every other part of your life. Living in a different place gives you a great chance to meet a lot of new people and see new things. Finally, travelling and moving from one country to another is easier than ever these days. So if you have an opportunity why would you not try?

However, moving to another country might be difficult for some people, especially when they have to do this on their own. Feeling lonely and homesick are not the best things in the world. Those are the worst parts of leaving your country and they are really hard to avoid at start. The second disadvantage is that even if you earn more money than you used to, you apparently spend much more on things such as food or accommodation. Life gets expensive when it comes to living abroad.

Thirdly, sometimes it is hard to leave your Polish life behind you and start it all new in a completely different place. I am sure it is easier when you are young but I can imagine how hard it is to move to another country when you have your own family. It is not about your own life any more and changing your living place might really affect your children.

Moving abroad might be your best life decision but it can be a disaster as well. As for me pros of living abroad surely overweigh its disadvantages but people are different and everything depends on a person's point of view.
